

Session Resources

Thursday, April 1, 2021

Session D2: Probation and Supervision in the Tribal Juvenile Healing to Wellness Court

- Kristina Pacheco, Tribal Law and Policy Institute
- Anna Clough, Tribal Law and Policy Institute
- Dave McArthur, White Earth Nation Tribal Juvenile Healing to Wellness Court

Workshop Description: The Tribal Juvenile Healing to Wellness Court emphasizes ongoing support, supervision, and accountability. This session will provide an overview of the methods by which supervision may occur and will provide participants with an overview of data collection and management processes that can support effective team communication.

Session Resources:

- OJJDP, Model Programs Guide Literature Review Formal, Post-Adjudication Juvenile Probation Services, 2017, Development Services Group, Inc.
Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) literature review that includes information regarding formal, post-adjudication juvenile probation services, process, examples of services, characteristics of the target populations, the role of the probation officer, evidence, and considerations.
- The Cost of Juvenile Probation, National Juvenile Defender Center, Issue Brief
Issue brief that supports a critical look into juvenile supervision fees through an analysis of consequences and impacts as well as working innovations.
- Transforming Juvenile Probation, A Vision for Getting it Right, Annie E. Casey Foundation
A report that focuses on the expansion of diversion opportunities and programming to support youth delinquency reduction and orientation toward strategies that avoid surveillance-oriented probation.
- Tribal Justice Probation System Guidebook, John Tuell, 2019
A guidebook to support enhanced practice within tribal courts, probation departments and among youth serving partners.

- Cobb et al., A Desktop Guide for Tribal Probation Personnel, Bureau of Justice Assistance- the Screening and Assessment Process, 2011
A guide intended to provide tribal probation personnel with information on how the screening and assessment process can facilitate and promote offender accountability and long-term behavior change.
- Youth on Probation: Bringing a 20th Century Service into a Developmentally Friendly 21st Century World
Report that considers the adoption of a developmental framework for juvenile probation, including principles to guide implementation of the approach in practice jurisdictions throughout the United States.

